JAMES B. MARTIN,	} Selectmen of Fremont.
ANDREW J. BROWN,
FRANK D. ROWE,

Report of Superintendent of Schools.

In reporting upon the general condition of schools during the past year, we believe we can truthfully report an average amount of good work and progress, as compared with former years in most of the districts.

What we should strive to accomplish in our common schools is a good practical education, one which will be useful to the young men and women when they arrive at the age when they must choose the occupation necessary to gain a living.

In the discharge of my duties, I have endeavored to carefully look after the details, and have made such suggestions to teachers and scholars as in my judgment would best serve the interests of education.

The scholars have generally manifested a desire for improvement and an interest in study.

Where this has not been the case, the cause may be assigned mainly to previous irregularity of attendance and want of proper home influence. While a portion of the pupils in the schools have been very regular in their attendance, the larger portion have been the opposite, and this can be counted as the greatest trouble and most serious hindrance to the success of the schools.

The heaviest calamities from which any community suffers may be traced to a neglected or misdirected education. In proportion as schools are fostered and increased in usefulness, the intelligence, comfort and happiness of the people are advanced, and disorder, lawlessness, intemperance, crime and the cost of courts lessened.

There have been 168 weeks of school during the year, giving to each school an average of 32 3-5 weeks, longest term taught 34 weeks, shortest 30 weeks. The reason for the difference in length of terms was illness of teacher in District No. 4, latter part of winter term, irregular and small attendance Districts No. 1 and 3.

Education is the live question of the age and day. There is not a school college or literary institution of any importance in the land, where methods are not undergoing revision, and courses of study being subjected to constant discussion. Many things are acknowledged faulty, others false, and others, though true and good, it is conceded must be modified to have practical value in this age. There are improvements that all acknowledge; there are changes that nearly all admit are beneficial. The exclamation of parents is common "If there had only been such things in my school days!"

Most ungraded schools in any community are unsatisfactory, and especially so to citizens that have at any time sent children to graded schools and known their superiority.

I do not say the time has come when the old lines should be rearranged, and the number of districts reduced; but my thought in relation to the matter is, if the citizens of the town interested in school matters, would consider that a system of graded schools, or one graded school, would be conducive to more privileges to scholars and a source of economy in finance, they would give it their thoughtful consideration.

By uniting five schools in one, or two (graded), two teachers could instruct, and do even greater justice to them. The principle is by virtue of the law already in the hands of the school boards of towns, but we think it should be thought of and discussed by the public until the citizens have generally come to understand its workings and advantages.

As will be noticed by report of the town treasurer the school district has received its apportionment of school money from the State treasury for 1894-5; under this head I will copy into this report from the State Superintendent the following received by me:

"This addition to your resources is intended to increase the efficiency of your schools, rather than to relieve the town of taxation. The importance of keeping up your appropriations is therefore urged upon you.

"1st. In many towns by lengthening the school year.

"2nd. By paying better salaries to teachers, and thus enabling the school board to demand and employ a higher grade of teaching ability.

"3rd. By taking action under Sec. 3 of Chapter 77 of the Session laws of 1899 to secure expert supervision of schools.

"In the cases of towns aided by vote of the Governor and Council, school boards are cautioned against reckoning upon this action as a precedent. Other towns may be considered as more worthy of participation in the benefit of this appropriation in future years."

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES B. MARTIN.
